About Us

The North Carolina Probation and Parole Association (NCPA) is a member driven, volunteer association that focuses on core principles of professional development, networking, education, and advocacy. NCPA is a unified voice for probation and parole staff across North Carolina advocating for issues that will better improve their overall work environment. NCPA is made up of criminal justice professionals and students. NCPA is dedicated to maintaining high professional standards, advocating for appropriate economic status for its members, and maintaining an enlightened public interest in the proper administration of probation and parole services. NCPA is a medium through which its members may function together in matters of mutual professional concern and a great opportunity to network with members across the state.
